

Final Fantasy Versus XIII Noctis

Papercraft by Sascha Kunzke

Introduction

I'm proud to present you this Papercraft Noctis from the hopefully soon to be released Final Fantasy Versus XIII. I tried to make it as accurate as possible, closely studying all the "rare" source material Square-Enix provided to us all in form of trailers, teasers and HD screenshots.

I decided to not fondle around with complex annoying work on proper instruction, but rather just releasing it as PDO file format, so you all can zoom around the 3D model as you wish to figure out how stuff needs to be glued together. While test building I found it very hard to build the black lined version because most of this guy is just black and you can't make out the line properly. So I recommend you to print it with white lines and later paint those nasty looking white lines over with a black pen or whatsoever you can use for this purpose. The weird looking light purple box goes into the stand to give it support so it can't bulge in and cause odd appearance. Well, this is all I got to say ... the whole thing goes together well and will look cool, and one last thing ... put it to a place a cat can't reach easily or you'll wake up next day and everything is just a kind of wet paper crumbled up ball with many scratches on it. Have fun.

